Admission Process

Upon admission to the hospital for medical stabilization, assessments of the patient's fundamental needs are conducted. These assessments include a medical history, a physical, a complete laboratory workup and a nursing assessment. This pre-screening process enables the patient to be admitted alongside a personalized plan for treatment.

Patients who are under the influence of chemical substances, and are considered medically unstable, will be closely observed and stabilized. New Vision accepts appropriate patients who are experiencing incapacitation due to substance use and/or abuse, or are experiencing acute withdrawal symptoms from the cessation of use of certain substances, in conjunction with other related health issues.

The diagnosis of need for inpatient admission can only be made by a licensed physician. The service accepts most insurance plans.
